

A GUIDE TO
BURIAL GROUNDS
OWNED AND MAINTAINED
BY THE
TOWN OF BARRE

PREPARED BY THE BARRE HISTORICAL COMMISSION

You, the reader, are perhaps looking for the burial place of an ancestor or relative. It is possible that your search will not be successful even though you have reason to believe that the person in question was interred here in Barre.

As you can see from this brochure there were many family plots that became private associations. Records were not always well kept or were destroyed accidentally. Families moved away, burial yards fell into disuse and often were abandoned to the ravages of nature.

Around the turn of this century a concerted effort was made to encourage resumption of care. Those associations that could no longer do so were asked to turn the funds and perpetual care over to the town. Eventually this was done by nearly all the cemetery associations. The cemeteries were returned to good condition. One person from each association was assigned to decipher and record the inscriptions before they faded from view.

In the interim, many gravestones were lost completely. So there is neither record of the burial nor stone to compensate for the loss.

We are sorry for this loss over which the town had no control, but we congratulate the town for its action in assumning responsibility when they did or much more would have been lost. Since taking charge the town has done a splendid job in keeping these old yards more than presentable.

OTHER GRAVEYARDS

In addition to these cemeteries, there are two family plots, now believed to be empty. These are plots of the Williams family and the Bassett family. Research shows all those known to be buried in these yards have been removed to other graveyards and others in the families were all interred elsewhere.

Plots set aside for the White family, the Felton family, and Mulit family can no longer be located.

Two graveyards in town are under the jurisdiction of private organizations.

ST JOSEPH'S CEMETERY

LOCATION: From the bandstand in the center of the town go south on 122 and 32. At the Quabbin Plaza take 32 which bears to the right. Almost immediately the gates are on the right. This cemetery is under the care and control of the Roman Catholic Diocese.
